

Risk Happens What GRC Leaders Need to Know

Attendees of the “Risk Happens: What GRC Leaders Need to Know Now” webinar participated in a concise survey, surfacing key insights and emerging trends shaping the GRC landscape.

Firms’ current approaches to risk management

Areas expected to have the biggest impact on improving risk management in the next 12–24 months.

Key areas posing challenges to businesses today.

These results capture the transition of financial services firms moving from compliance-driven risk management to forward data-enabled and culture-embedded resilience.

We can conclude that industry knows what to do but is still grappling with how to do it consistently.

- Firms are becoming more analytical, but many still lack reliable data
- Risk is more visible but not yet fully owned across the business
- Technology is accelerating, but trust in data and models lags behind.

True resilience requires integration, analytical strength, data discipline, cultural ownership, and technological agility working together.
